FAILED TO SURPRISE HIM.
The Easterner Knew His Business and Readily Turned the Joke.

Last year the fruit-raisers held a convention in a western city. It was devoted largely to a discussion, pro and con—mainly "con"—as to the "Ben Davis" apple, relates Youth's Companion. Now, the Ben Davis, by reason of its being large, red, fine-looking, a prolific grower and an excellent keeper, is a favorite apple among westerners who raise fruit for the markets; but the coarseness of its flesh and its lack of flavor and sweetness make it strongly disliked by those who judge an apple by its quality.

Among the apple growers in attendance at the convention was an eastern horticulturist who had been especially severe in his denunciation of the Ben Davis. He presented figures showing that the exportation of American apples to Europe had fallen off lamentably of late years on account of the fact that the most of them were of this particular variety, and that the people over there could not be brought to regard them with favor; and he urged that the convention set the seal of its condemnation on the Ben Davis and discourage its further growth and exploitation.

A fruit grower who had an orchard of several thousand apple trees, all of them of this particular kind, one morning handed him a magnificent looking specimen, bright red and of the largest size.

"You think you know a good deal about apples," he said, with a wink at the others who were standing about. "Taste that and see if you can tell what variety it is."

The eastern man bit, or tried to bite, into it. He found that its exterior was a thin shell of papier-mache, while its interior consisted entirely of cork.

"Yes," he said, with a countenance wholly unmoved, "I know what it is. It's a Ben Davis, but it's the best one I ever tasted."

CLAIMED BY MONASTERY.
First Male Child Must Be Trained in Priestly Mysteries in Tibet.

Every Thibetan family is compelled to devote its firstborn male child to a monastic life. Soon after his birth the child is taken to a Buddhist monastery, to be brought up and trained in priestly mysteries, says Cassell's.

At about the age of eight he joins one of the caravans which travel to Lhasa. There he is attached to one of the local monasteries, where he remains as a novice until he is 15, learning to read the sacred books and perform the religious rites of his faith.

The firstborn sons being thus "sent into the church," as we should say in this country, the second sons become the heads of the families and marry.

Unlike some other semi-civilized races, these young Thibetans have the right of choosing their own wives. A Thibetan girl, too, cannot be married off by her parents without her own consent.

The curious custom in regard to the eldest sons results, of course, in nearly every Thibetan family acquiring the odor of sanctity by numbering a monk among its members.

Odorless Flowers.
The majority of flowers have no perfume whatever. A chemist, who has for some time been making researches into the subject, declares that, out of 4,114 varieties known and cultivated in Europe, scarcely 400 have any odor, and of these nearly 50 have an odor which is, if anything, disagreeable.

High-Prized Card.
Two thousand seven hundred and fifty pounds have just been paid for a single playing card, a nine of diamonds. Upon the back of it Holbein had painted an exquisite miniature of Frances Howard, duchess of Norfolk.

Comfort Swing Chair

Made entirely of metal and fancy colored canvas. The material is light and firmly braced, finished in black enamel. Folds compactly, occupying space of only 4 1/2 x 31 inches. Is set up or folded by removing only four stove bolts. Perfectly simple.

Solid Comfort

In the Comfort Chair, There's no argument necessary—it's simply a fact. Sitting or reclining. Swinging or not. Just good old Comfort. Put the chair anywhere. You don't need a great big lawn with trees or a great big anything. Any little shady corner will do. You can put the chair where the shade is and move it if the shade moves. The independent standards which are a part of the chair do it all.

Suppose you call and see it. You do not need to buy—But you probably will—other people do. Because the price is only $4.00 at
